

Student Name _____

Interview Worksheet

Reporter _____

Section _____

Story _____

Angle _____

Who are the best people to interview for this story? Why? Choose two people to interview.

What information do you already have about this person/topic and how do they relate to the story? Try to get the “who, where, when, why, what, and how” information before you write your questions. You may need to do some research.

When and where will the interview take place?

Have you discussed what the interview will be about with the interviewee?

Continued on next page

WRITING 3

What are some “easy” questions to start the interview? This is a good time to clarify names, dates, and places.

What open-ended questions will provide the best information for your story?

Are you prepared for a conversation, not just a list of questions? Are you prepared to take notes or record the conversation? What materials do you need to be prepared?

What three things can you do after the interview?
